Detailed Action

Drawing

1. The Examiner accepts the amendment to the specification.

Specification

2. The Examiner has considered the information disclosure statement (IDS) submitted on December 2, 2005.

Explanation of rejection

Claim rejection – 35 U.S.C. 101

3. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

4. Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101. The claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter with no practical application (even if written in a method form). Law of nature and natural phenomena are the exceptions to statutory subject matter. For instance, “quantification of the earth’s surface area heat flow” and “evaluation of the thermal state for related oil and natural gas” are governed by the thermodynamics law of nature and the claims do not exhibit a practical application. "An exponentially decreasing heat source and associated boundary conditions" actually are naturally occurring thermodynamics properties.

The subject matter that is not a practical application or use of an idea, a law of nature or a natural phenomenon is not patentable. See, e.g., Rubber-Tip Pencil Co. v. Howard, 87 U.S. (20 Wall.) 498, 507 (1874) ("idea of itself is not patentable, but a new device by which it may be made practically useful is"); Mackay Radio & Telegraph Co. v. Radio Corp. of America, 306 U.S. 86, 94, 40 USPQ 199, 202 (1939) ("While a scientific truth, or the mathematical expression of it, is not patentable invention, a novel and useful structure created with the aid of knowledge of scientific truth may be.").

"An exponentially decreasing heat source and associated boundary conditions" actually are naturally occurring thermodynamics properties. The claims in the instant case are related to a mathematical expression describing thermodynamic properties. No new device or idea is developed to make the application useful. "Obtaining an expression for mean heat flow and variance in heat flow" does not produce concrete and tangible result. The invention "as a whole must accomplish a practical application. That is, it must produce a "useful, concrete and tangible result.

Response to Argument

5. The claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter with no practical application (even if written in a method form). Law of nature and natural phenomena are the exceptions to statutory subject matter. For instance, “quantification of the earth’s surface area heat flow” and “evaluation of the thermal state for related oil and natural gas” are governed by the thermodynamics law of nature and the claims do not exhibit a practical application. “An exponentially decreasing heat source and associated boundary conditions” actually are naturally occurring thermodynamics properties. Applicant is caught in between claims that are related to a mathematical expression describing thermodynamic properties and trying to make those claims statutory for purposes of examination. “Obtaining an expression for mean heat flow and variance in heat flow” does not produce concrete and tangible result. The invention “as a whole must accomplish a practical application. That is, it must produce a “useful, concrete and tangible result.” State Street, 149 F.3d at 1373, 47 USPQ2d at 1601-02. The purpose of this requirement, as stated in MPEP is to limit patent protection to inventions that possess a certain level of “real world” value, as opposed to subject matter that represents nothing more than an idea or concept, or is simply a starting point for future investigation or research (see also Brenner v. Manson, 383 U.S. 519, 528-36, 148 USPQ 689, 693-96); In re Ziegler, 992, F.2d 1197, 1200-03, 26 USPQ2d 1600, 1603-06 (Fed. Cir. 1993)).

Art Unit: 2857

Conclusion

6. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
